SEPTEMBER '69

The Ups and Downs of Delta Nu

A continuous series of peaks and valleys is the best way to describe the 1968-69 school terms for the Delta Nu Tekes. Lack of complete unity at times created some unpleasant events. However, after a so-called "valley," the chapter would rally its forces and reach another peak.

Homecoming was generally unsuccessful for the Tekes as we placed fifth in both house decoration and float competition. Delta Nu tried to stay within their proposed budget, but with the rising cost for production, we found out the hard way that this was insufficient. Also, inadequate communication with our alumni caused poor attendance to our party held for them.

Christmas was a good time of the year. Successful events included our dance, caroling with the Alphas, a humorous interchapter gift exchange, and of course the annual Teke-Alpha Orphan's Party. All of those who have ever actively participated in the Orphan's Party know what a thrill and warm experience this can be.

The new year was begun with the annual Garter Party, and naturally, the coming of final examinations. Things looked great for the up-coming semester, as the chapter seemed to be doing the right things. However, this was not the case. Little things began to creep into the picture and cause disharmony. As one knows, it is the little things that count. The result, another valley was upon Delta Nu.

Our spring pledge class played an integral part in the next controversy. They voiced dissatisfaction with things of which the active chapter was generally aware. Our advisors also became understandably dissatisfied, resulting in their resignation. This left Delta Nu in a very distressing position. Again, the chapter rallied together and realized the necessity in unity and consistency in their actions.

The Red Carnation Ball came at the end of the last difficulty, but it had to classified a success in light of the happenings of late. Again, due to the local chapter's ineptness, there was scant alumni representation.

The Ugly Man contest helped revive the Teke spirit, as Delta Nu won the event, hoping to start a string of victories. Frater Jerry Peirce was instrumental in the organization of this activity.

The year closed with the Tekes fully aware of the massive job on hand for them the coming school terms. It is hoped that Delta Nu will begin September on a high note, and continue to rise throughout the year.

Miss Jackie Jochims

The Delta Nu chapter sweetheart, Miss Jackie Jochims, made the Tekes look like men with good taste, as she was named Miss Iowa for the coming year. Jackie is a senior from Carroll, Iowa, and is an elementary education major. The men of Delta Nu wish Jackie the best of wishes during her reign as chapter sweetheart and Miss Iowa.

THE NEW TEKE FACE

Old 222 West Cooper has taken on a new face, in light of the various remodeling and building projects this past year.

On the outside, the new Teke sign built by Frater Paul Poynter adds much to the appearance of the house, along with the new paint job completed last fall. Some shrubs have been planted, and the old trellis work has been modified. These new additions, along with the old maple tree in the east yard, help make 222 a more attractive fraternity home.

Inside is where the change has been greater. All the upstairs rooms have been worked on, with paneling being done in some rooms. The men's bath room received much needed attention, as did the hallway on second floor, with a new tile floor. On the first floor, the floors have been sanded and received a gym coat finish around the red carpets. The card room has been tiled and is very attractive. The dining room has been completely paneled and has new curtains.

Our former advisors, Mr. David Meier and Mr. Darwin Boutiette, deserve much of the credit for the new Teke face. We invite all our alumni to visit us and see the improvements at 222.

THE ATHLETIC ENDEAVORS

Delta Nu finished third in a close race for the supremacy award. The highlight of the competition came with an all-school victory in volleyball, following disappointing second place finishes in football and basketball. Teke is looking forward to another competitive year in intramurals, hoping to capture the football championship this fall.

Varsity athletes are sparse in Teke, as we have only one footballer, Russ Gallinger from Union Star, Mo. In basketball, junior Phil Stutzman is our representative. Five Tekes played baseball last spring, with Jerry Gallinger from Union Star, Mo., brother Russ, and Sam Hankins of Tabor, Iowa fame being on the starting nine as first baseman, centerfielder, and third baseman respectively. John Bowker from Sac City, Iowa, and Jim Wright from Richmond, Mo., are two promising pitchers who saw some action last year as freshmen.

Just an interesting note to the alumni - Watch out for the Bearcat basketball team this year. Last year's 10-10 mark should be a stepping stone for an even better record this year, and possibly even a shot at the conference crown. Good recruiting and plenty of experience are reason for this optimistic statement.

PLEDGESHIP: CHANGES IN THE MAKING

The Spring class of '69 completed a vigorous pledge program headed by Frater Hegemon Jerry Gallinger and assisted by the active chapter. It is becoming increasingly difficult to continue with the traditional pledge activities, and still have the pledges maintain a respectable scholastic record. Due to the need for increased scholastic emphasis, Delta Nu is gradually attempting to pattern its pledge program thusly. The old "traditionals" are still held such as pledge skips, the Teke "stew", war games, line meetings, and brotherhood walks; but respect for the purpose of being in school must be granted to the pledges. The chapter is open for suggestions and attitudes by the alumni to assist in making our pledge program meet the needs of the fraternity and the pledges.

NO. 514 INITIATED

Delta Nu reached the 500 level in initiates last fall and winter with the activation of a hold-over pledge, a chapter advisor, and thirteen pledges from the fall semester.

The new initiates possess much potential, and should be of great aid in keeping Teke at the top at Northwest Missouri State.

Bill Lantz, a junior from Monmouth, Ill., has the distinction of being number 500 on the scroll. Mr. Darwin Boutiette, a chapter advisor and instructor at the college, went through a simulated "help" week and was activated with the 13-man pledge class as number 501 on the scroll.

The following are new fraters at Delta Nu from the fall '69 pledge class: Bill Byrne, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Wilbur Cleaver, Missouri Valley, Iowa; Chuck George, Maryville, Mo.; Jim Goff, Warren, New Jersey; Dan Gracey, Truro, Iowa; Joel Grier, Montezuma, Iowa; Dale Holcomb, St. Joseph, Mo.; Bill Ingels, Maryville, Mo.; Tom Meyers, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Dan Porter, North Kingstown, R.I.; Randy Porter, Modale, Iowa; Steve Strain, Modale, Iowa; Ron Young, Honey Creek, Iowa.

FROM THE PRYTANIS

Dear Fraters,

In all areas and phases of fraternity life, our future looks bright. With the aid and assistance of a few alums and the Board of Control, we have done the much needed remodeling on the house. Everyone seems to be taking an interest locally, but we need more help from the rest of our alumni. We need our alumni's experience and support, both financially, and in terms of leadership and time. With this type of backing, we could make Delta Nu a great chapter in our great fraternity.

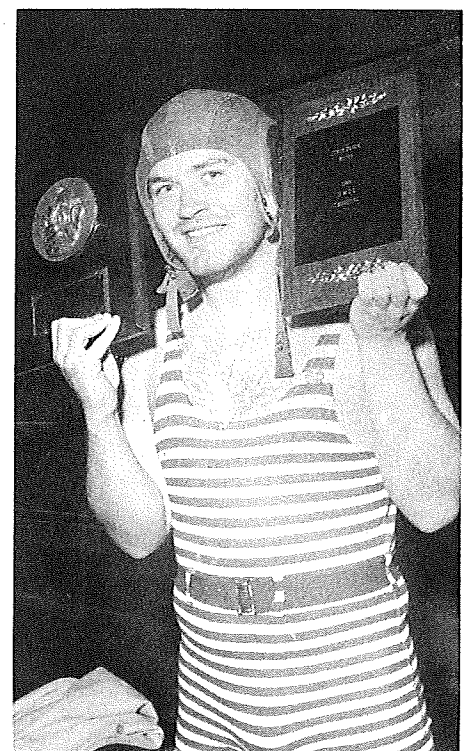

Our leadership looks solid on campus, responsible socially, and strong in sports and intramurals; all seeming to be associated with an internal harmony within our chapter which shall make this coming year a most memorable, enjoyable, and successful one for all Delta Nu Tekes.

Your help will greatly be appreciated as we strive to achieve the goals which we have set for ourselves for the coming year.

Yours in the bond,
Stephen E. Conner, Prytanis
